Ana Caban is an accomplished musician, educator, and performer with a lifelong passion for inspiring students through music. She began her musical journey at the age of 10 and, by age 12, was accepted into the prestigious Escuela Libre de Música in Hato Rey, Puerto Rico. During an orchestral instrument presentation, she discovered the rich, expressive voice of the cello and knew it would become her lifelong main instrument, alongside other instruments she determined to learn.

Ana earned her Bachelor of Arts in Music Performance from Florida State University in 1998. She later continued her advanced cello studies in Madrid, Spain, under María de Macedo, honorary assistant to legendary cellists János Starker and Pierre Fournier. Her commitment to excellence also led her to earn a Master of Science in Entertainment Business, graduating as Valedictorian at the top of her class.

Her musical training spans Classical, Jazz, Contemporary Christian and Popular music, including participation in a masterclass with world-renowned cellist Yo-Yo Ma and studied under acclaimed electric bassist Jerry Brooking. During her eight years in Las Vegas, Nevada, Ana organized and performed chamber music for weddings, corporate functions, and special events, further expanding her professional performance experience.

Today, Ana remains an active performer at private events and for the past 4 years serves as a weekly member of the Worship Orchestra at Revival Ministries International, whose events are broadcast worldwide.

As a music instructor for many years, Ana is passionate about helping every student discover their potential. She teaches cello from beginner through advanced levels, violin and viola from beginner through intermediate levels, beginner piano, music theory, sight reading, and college audition preparation. Her teaching philosophy combines strong technical fundamentals with musical expression, performance confidence, and a genuine appreciation for both classical and contemporary music. She believes every student can succeed with the right guidance, encouragement, and dedication, and she is committed to helping each one reach their personal and musical goals.
